Week 10

What a wonderful week away my mom and I had, but sooner or later reality returns. This week was filled with catching-up, and also beset with problems of the technical variety. The server for my website, and therefore also my emails was down, so nothing could be sent, or received for that matter, and my personal email refuses to send anything. I've tried googling for solutions, but the answers are in tech-speak. Can't they speak in plain, non-techy English? On a happier note, things are looking like spring here. How are they where you live?
